Alec Pearson enjoys a career based in Vancouver, where he currently serves as a “sessional instructor of guitar” at the University of British Columbia. Alec has performed both solo and in ensemble across Canada, Spain, Colombia, Greece, and the U.S. He currently serves as president of the “Vancouver Classic Guitar Society,” where he works to organise many concerts, lectures, masterclasses, and social events. His current artistic efforts include composing a set of 24 original preludes, which have been gaining praise from peers and audiences alike.

Alec holds the degree “Máster en Interpretación de Guitarra Clasica” from the Universitat d’Alacant in Alicante, Spain, where he studied with an array of the best guitarists in the world, including David Russell, Pepe Romero, Manuel Barrueco, Roberto Aussel, Paul Galbraith, and Fabio Zanon, to name a few.

Prior to studying abroad, Alec earned a Masters degree from the University of British Columbia, where he studied with internationally renowned Canadian guitarist and longtime mentor, Daniel Bolshoy. In 2012, he received a Bachelor
